SAD #44 directors deny grievance

By CHRISTY CROSS

The SAD #44 Board of Directors voted Monday night to uphold the superintendent's decision to transfer district physical education teacher Levi Brown to work part time at Crescent Park School and part time at Telstar.

The decision followed a two-hour closed-door session by the board, which sometimes included Brown, Supt. Dewaine Craig and the district teachers' union representative John Applin.

Brown had filed a board-level grievance protesting the transfer, according to Craig.

Specifically, Craig said, Brown claimed his seniority in the district should have protected him from the transfer.

According to Craig, Brown has been a full time physical education teacher in the district for five or six years and has more seniority than Barb Russell, also a full time physical education teacher at Telstar.

Craig said Brown also claimed discrimination. "He's saying he got transferred because he was male," Craig said. "I'm saying the reverse is true, that the reason Barb Russell didn't get transferred is because she's female."

"I wouldn't put a female to manage a boys' locker room any more than I would put a male in the female locker room," Craig said. "I moved Levi and left Barb to cover the female locker room. If I had moved her it would have left two males at Telstar."

While there is no female physical education teacher at Crescent Park School, neither are there any locker rooms.

Craig said board members were told the transfer had to be made last April and May, during the budget process. He said the district needed the part time physical education teacher at Crescent Park School but had no funds to hire an additional person.

He said elementary physical education teacher Barb Dunham works at Ethel Bisbee, Woodstock and Andover Schools.

The board members voted without public discussion to uphold the superintendent's decision to transfer Brown.

Board members Cheryl Elliot and Merton Brown, both of Bethel, voted against the motion. Merton and Levi Brown are brothers.

Craig said Levi Brown and Applin "could take this out of the district and ask an outside arbitrator to come in." "I don't know if they will," he said. In other business Monday night, board members approved appointing Dwayne Bennett and Jeff Parsons as Crescent Park School soccer coaches and Steve Keane as high school junior varsity basketball coach.

They also:

- Appointed Charles Plummer as part time principal at the Andover School at a salary of $15,000, with insurance benefits of $1,500, travel $1,000 and seven sick leave days;
- Appointed Virgil Conkright as a regular bus driver;
- Appointed Mary Richardson as Chapter I aide at Andover School; and
- Accepted the resignation of bus driver Carolyn Johnson.

Andover planners to discuss new permits and policy setting

By BARBARA ADAMS

Andover Planning Board members agreed last week to discuss establishing requirements for plumbing permits and occupancy permits. They also agreed to meet with a representative from the Androscoggin Valley Council of Governments to help them revamp their permit process and to put their procedures in writing.

Board member Everett Mayberry suggested that, as in surrounding towns, a plumbing permit be required for future building in Andover, since in order to get a plumbing permit, a septic system first must be designed. The board also discussed the possibility of occupancy permits.

"That would mean two more permits us volunteers have to issue," board member Ed Witt said.

"Someone has to determine whether or not a structure needs a septic system," he added. "For one thing, the code enforcement officer (Ken Hill) is not as active here as in other towns, and won't be until the selectmen are willing to give him the time and leeway to do the job."

"We have to start being careful," he said, "about additions to existing camps. That's where we really have to be careful." He referred to the possibility of additions resulting in increased occupancy.

Chairman Dave Greig also brought to the board's attention that in surrounding towns, including Roxbury, planning board members get paid for their services, which is not the case in Andover.

"We should revamp our permit process and set procedures," Witt said, "and have someone come up from AVCOG and critique us and make suggestions and we will put procedures in

County recyclers win $237,250 state grant

By CHRISTY CROSS

The Oxford County Regional Solid Waste Corporation received the good news this week—the group has been awarded a $237,250 recycling grant.

RSWC Recycling Chairman Marie Bartlett of Greenwood said Tuesday she was very excited at the news.

And RSWC Chairman Mike Cullinan, president of Cullinan's Inc., echoed Bartlett's sentiment. "This is the third time up for bat for us," Cullinan said. "This time we hit a home run."

RSWC had applied for both the first and second rounds of state funding for recycling projects, one last spring and one in July.

Cullinan said he received the long-awaited news by phone on Monday.

The grant will allow RSWC to buy 4,000 household recycling containers, up to eight collection bins, a truck, a portable lift and a large horizontal baler, Cullinan said.

The group's goal is to recycle 25 percent of its member towns' solid waste in two years, and 50 percent in four years, he said. The towns are now recycling four percent of their solid waste, he said.

RSWC member towns are Bethel, Greenwood, Norway, South Paris, Stoneham, Waterford, Canton, Gilead, Hartford, Lincoln Plantation, Newry, Woodstock and unorganized townships governed by Oxford County, Cullinan said.

"The whole foundation of this is to reduce the expense to taxpayers for solid waste disposal," he said.

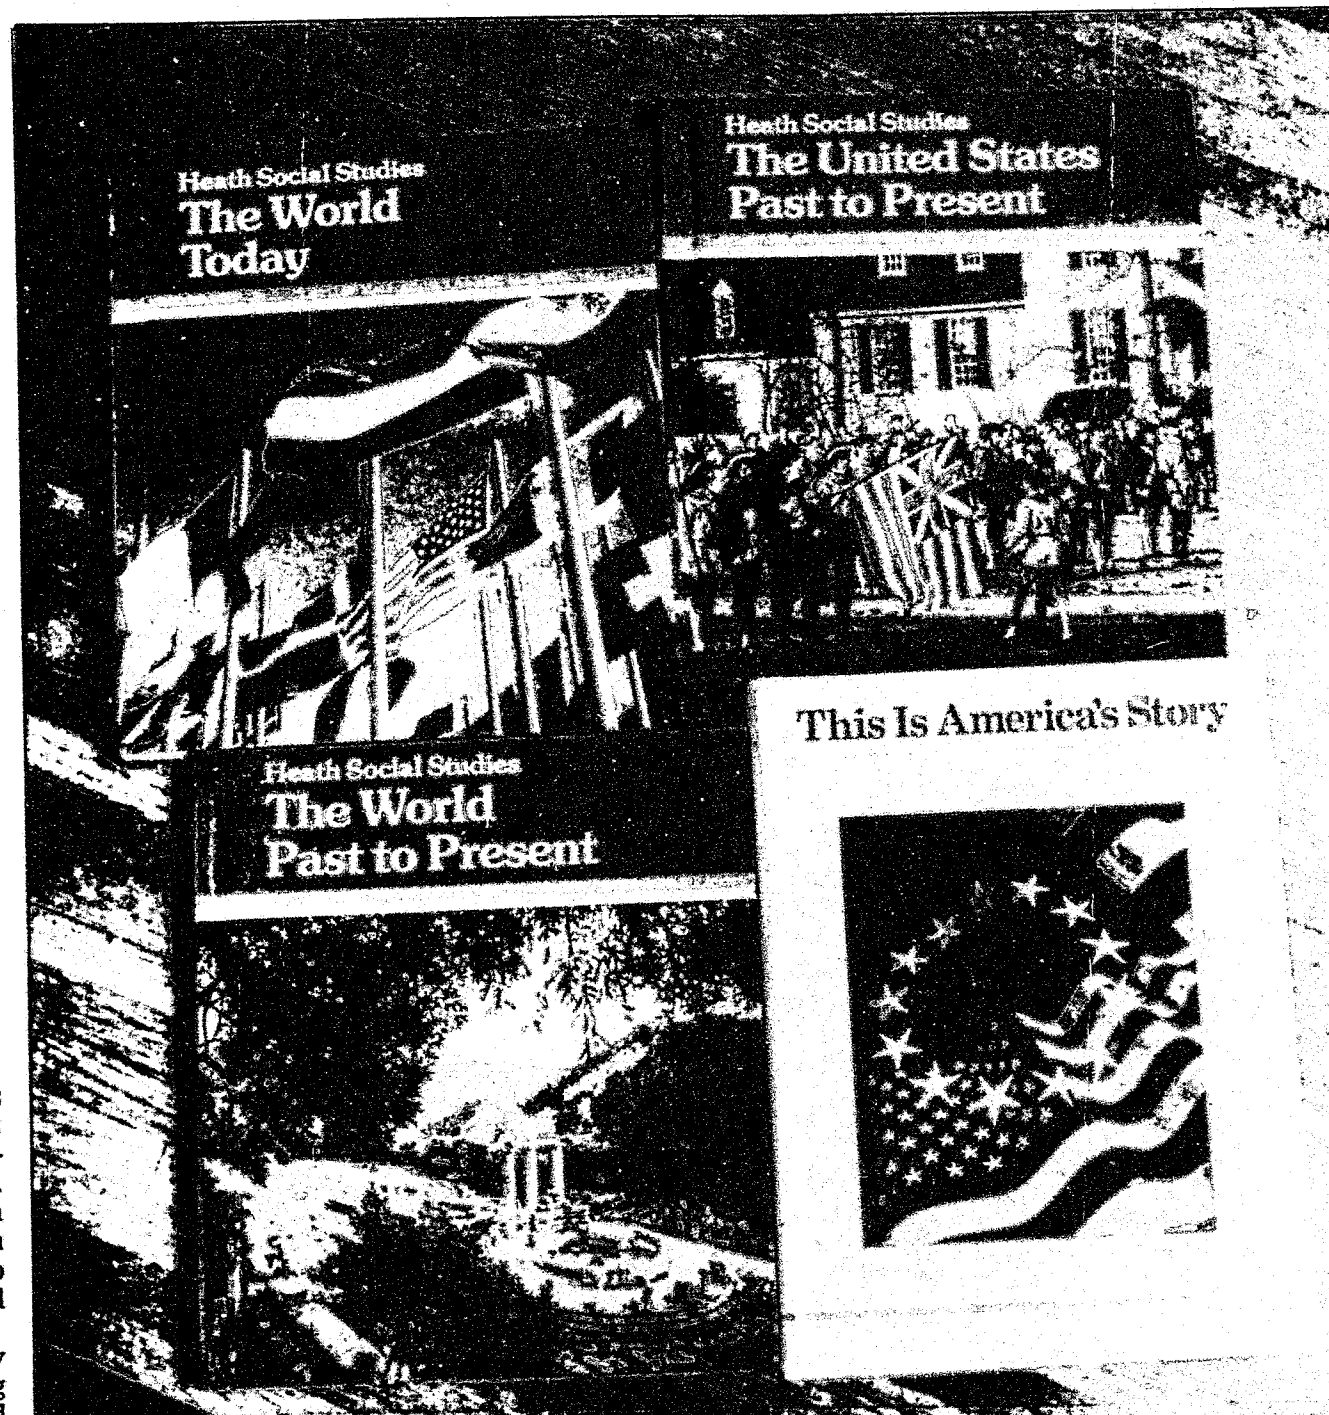

According to Cullinan, the recycling center will be located at the Norway-Paris solid waste facility. "We broke ground for that (Monday)," he said. He anticipates a completion date of April 1, 1991 for both the transfer facility and the recycling center.

Cullinan said RSWC has been planning the recycling center for 1½ years.

The group originally applied for a $249,246 grant from the Maine Waste Management Agency, Cullinan said. The agency reduced the amount by $11,996 because agency officials believe RSWC can buy the household recycling containers for less than $10 each, he said.

The recycling containers consist of three compartments, one for glass, one for newspapers, one for some other recyclable, Cullinan said. The 4,000 units will be put in households in member towns. Cullinan said that although the 4,000 "start-up" units won't be enough for all households in the towns, RSWC will be buying more containers as it earns money from the sale of recycled goods. The goal, he said, is to have a container in every household's kitchen or garage.

The grant also allows the RSWC to create two new jobs in the area, Cullinan said. He anticipates hiring two people to run the recycling center.

SOME OF THE 'GARBAGE TEXTS' that are used in SAD #44's Social Studies courses include these. Department Chairman Bill Morton complains that there's little to differentiate the texts offered by the textbook publishers. Aside from a good text for AP American History, he terms the other texts "bland."

Social Studies classes react quickly to Mideast crisis; but textbooks hold back curriculum

By BERNIE WIDEMAN

The United States military is not the only institution that exhibited a quick reaction time to the Mideast crisis. Telstar wasn't far behind.

Shortly after President Bush announced that the U.S. would take on Iraq in the desert sands of the Arabian peninsula, Telstar's Social Studies Department began marshalling its own forces.

Seventh-graders, in addition to studying about Iraq, are writing letters to the American GIs in Saudi Arabia. Some sections of 7th and 8th grades are studying the background of the conflict, using an article from the Atlantic Monthly on the roots of Moslem rage.

A book on the Iran-Iraq war is highlighted in a library display, and Social Studies classes at all levels are encouraged to discuss the situation.

Teacher Charlie Raymond, who teaches area studies, picks his areas—in part—on what's happening in the world.

"If something comes up, we can be on it in two weeks," he says, referring to how quickly he can put together a supplemental curriculum for Social Studies.

To accomplish this, he uses magazines, newspapers and TV reporting.

Department Chairman Bill Morton is proud of the job that Social Studies teachers throughout the district are doing. He sees a lot of improvement since a district-wide curriculum was adopted in 1986.

(It will be discussed and likely revised next year, as part of the district's five-year cycle on revising the various curricula.)

In adopting the district-wide curricula, at the request of Supt. Dewaine Craig, the district gave teachers definite guidelines on what was to be taught.

"We wanted to make sure that kids

Tally-Ho riders bring home ribbons from Big E

Tally-Ho 4-H Horse members returned Sept. 16 from five days at the Big E in West Springfield, Mass., and for at least one member of that team, Audrey Foster of West Paris, it was the end of a dream come true.

Foster has been a member of the Tally-Ho 4-H Horse team for eight years and has gone to the Big E for three years.

Her goal for this event was to place top blue in one of the classes she participated in and this year she realized this goal. Her top blue came in the Western Pleasure class, competing against 4-H'ers from all over New England. She also placed fourth blue in the Western Showmanship class; eighth red in the Western Equitation class; and white in the Western Trail class.

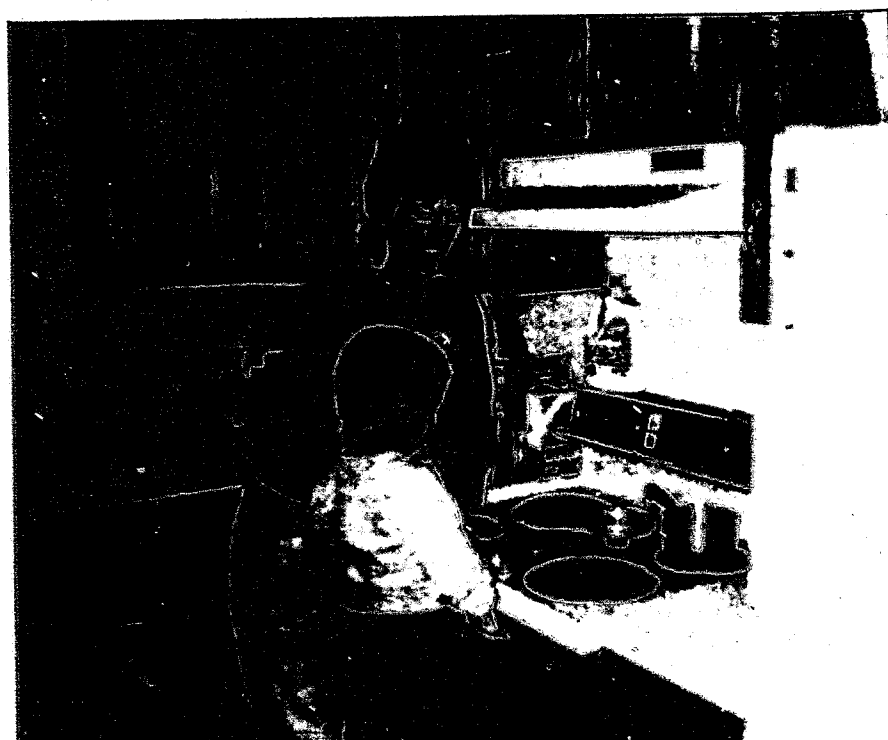

Foster was fourth in scoring at the tryouts at Skowhegan, which placed her on the Quiz Bowl at the Big E and the Maine team came in fourth in that event.

Two other members from Tally-Ho went to the Big E on the Maine team for the first time this year. They were Joanna Otterson and Shelley Brackett, both of South Paris. Otterson placed eighth red in the English Equitation class; red in English Showmanship; red in English Pleasure; and white in English Trail.

Brackett placed seventh blue in English Showmanship; eighth red in English Pleasure; red in English Equitation; and white in Over Fences. All placements are done on the Danish System.

BIG E—Audrey Foster and her father West Paris anticipate Buzzes Fancy Rocky's participation in the Maine 4-H club activities at the Big E earlier this month in West Springfield, Mass.

Newry Mothers' Club compiles cookbook

By WENDY D. HANSCOM

The Newry Mothers' Club has collected townspeople's favorite recipes and compiled them into the Newry Community Cookbook.

The cookbook includes over 200 recipes from throughout the town and will be available by the first of November.

Alison Aloisio contributed a family favorite which she enjoys preparing for her husband and three children. The ingredients for her Chicken Casserole are:

- 3½ pounds cooked chicken cut into bite size pieces;
- 1 cup chopped celery;
- ¼ cup coarse chopped walnuts;
- 2 tablespoons onion;
- 2 tablespoons green pepper;
- one 10½ oz. can of cream of chicken soup;
- 1 cup mayonnaise;

- 2 tablespoons lemon juice;
- ¾ teaspoon salt;
- ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Mix all ingredients together and turn into a 2 quart casserole. Top with buttered Italian bread crumbs and a sprinkle of paprika. Bake uncovered at 350 for 30 minutes.

Elaine Bonica with her husband Tom runs Bear River Cabins in Newry, where the cookbooks will be offered for sale.

To prepare Elaine's Special Spicy Buffet Casserole layer in a large casserole dish:

- 2 dozen cocktail size meatballs;
- 2 medium diced potatoes;
- 3 parboiled and sliced carrots;
- 1 medium onion chopped;
- 1 chopped green pepper;
- 1 pound each of Kielbasa (not smoked) and Hot Italian Sausage cut in chunks.

Pour over the top of the layered casserole one 18 oz. bottle of Openpit Barbecue Sauce, no other seasoning needed. Bake at 350 for one to one and a half hours.

These and many other delicious recipes will be included in this community effort. Anyone wishing to reserve a copy of the cookbook can call Cindy Moxie at 624-2995.

What message?

Congratulations to the seven students—Kristan Powell, Becky Hunt, Nate Buckman, Penny Robinson, Becky Hanscom, Jessica Fogg and Merry Howe—for their scores, in the 95th percentile or better, on the Maine Educational Assessment tests.

And congratulations, too, to the rest of the students who scored well on the tests, particularly that eight percent of the seniors who, though their parents didn't graduate from high school, outperformed even the children of college graduates.

But we have to wonder what kind of message the school is sending by rewarding these students with raffle chances for tickets to a concert, movie, or for a video-tape rental.

Or is it just a romantic notion we have of old-time spelling bees and public speaking contests that students ought to be rewarded for scholastic excellence with fine books, a magazine subscription, a slide rule—or its modern day equivalent, a calculator? —CCC

Letters to the editor

BETHEL'S CHIEF STOWELL
(EXTRA) (SPECIAL PERSON)

To the Editor:

I don't see your paper very often, but my friend Norman Stone gets it, so I do occasionally.

I am inspired today to write to you to see if you all realize what a jewel of a person you have in your Police Chief Brian Stowell.

He left Rumbold and part of me went with him.

I thought I was all over missing him when I heard him on our local radio station talking on the phone about D.A.R.E.

That empty feeling came back all over again.

I immediately wrote him to tell him the above and put it right in the mail on Thursday.

I wrote him, "I don't mean to bother you, but I just wanted you to know, and if you ever come down (to Rumbold) come up and see me, as I am now inescapable—if you want to."

Lo and behold, (That's not a very original exclamation) this morning (Saturday) you should ring my buzzer but himself, Chief Stowell.

I said to myself, "The mail service must have improved a lot." (It once took nine days for a Valentine to get to my grandchild just across the Androscoggin River in Mexico via Barre, Vt.).

When I mentioned it to him he said he hadn't even received it yet.

"E.S.P.," he explained.

"Right on," my mind said, "Extra Special Person." But you don't be that frivolous to a chief of police. I didn't put it into words.

People don't hug a chief of police, either, but I shoved my wheelchair away and struggled to my feet to match my six foot height to his in a hearty hug—to hell with the pain.

When he was here in Rumbold he visited with the senior citizens regularly when he was on patrol.

I was (before the wheelchair) security for the Muskies Building for many years and he made many responses less of a burden many times when I called him for an emergency and I was in tears.

If you all should meet him, some day, and his badge seems to turn to a reddish glow, you will know that is his heart showing through—his concern for you people.

"Extra Sensory Perception" to you, Chief—but "Extra Special Policeman" in my book.

D.A.R.E. NEEDS YOU

To the Editor:

Beginning Oct. 1 all sixth grade children will be participating in a first of its kind to the SAD #44 area "Project DARE Program" to conclude in February 1991 with graduation ceremonies for all sixth grade participants.

"Project DARE" is supported through community contributions and fund-raising along with the dedication and hard work of approximately 12 individuals for the education of drug abuse.

If you express any interest in this program we need your support and ideas for the upcoming sixth grade graduation in February and fund-raising for the 1991-92 school year.

Our goal is to someday become a federally funded program, but until that time, we have to rely solely on you.

Come and see what DARE is all about.

The next meeting is Tuesday, Oct. 16, at 7 p.m. at the Selectmen's Office in Bethel.

We look forward to seeing you there.

GASOLINE PRICE RIPOFF?

To the Editor:

Beth and I have just returned from a three-week plus camping adventure through the west and mid-west almost to Colorado. The trip was great but that is not why I write this.

I thought folks would be interested in knowing what we discovered about gas prices from Bethel to Ogalla, Kan. and back again. We did cover just a bit less than 5,000 miles during which we filled up in a variety of places.

When we left here on Aug. 27 we filled up with regular for $16.28 (I'm rounding off). When we returned the price was $13.34 on Sept. 18.

Prices varied from $1.19 in parts of Missouri to $1.53 in Port Jervis, N.Y. Prices in Canada were, as usual, higher than in the states but the increases were comparatively smaller than those on our side of the border.

It was interesting to note that we passed several stations that had closed and prices listed were prior to the Gulf Crisis and were as low as $5.95 per gallon. Prices were always highest at Interstate exits. One station at Springfield, Vt. had regular unleaded for $1.63.

What I realize that competition is the American way, why did I consistently feel I was being ripped off? The variation in prices—mostly up—came at a time when we were told that the price for crude had been reduced. This was not reflected in any area through which we traveled.

We also noted vast areas of Kansas where there were many oil wells, many of which were not pumping. Why should that be?

KEEP COLE BLOCK ORIGINAL

To the Editor:

Town officials who have had a role in the maintenance of the Cole Block, are to be commended for the painting of two sides of the building earlier this year.

Seeing the building restored to some semblance of its 19th century glory has been a pleasing experience for me and to many Bethel residents.

My sense of satisfaction has been jarred, however, by the disturbing news that has come to my attention with the proposed change in the entrance to the town office.

Originally both entrances to the businesses on the first floor were centered in the middle of each bay according to a photograph of the building contained in the 1886 centennial edition of the "Bethel News."

Sometime later, the entrance on the opposite side from the town office was moved to the center of the building beside the entrance of Odeon Hall. The town office entrance, however, remains where it originally was, just where one of Maine's most important architects, George Combs of Lewiston, intended it to remain.

The town's current plans provide for this door to be moved toward the Odeon Hall entrance as well. This change is a major one to the facade of the building and was prohibited by the 1982 deed in which the Bethel Savings Bank conveyed the premises to the Town of Bethel.

The trustees of the bank have apparently sanctioned this change, but my impression is that they did so unaware of the placement of the original doorway. I would also hope, now that town officials are aware of the importance of keeping this doorway as it is, that they will modify their plans and maintain the facade, just as it was intended by the 1982 deed.

I urge those interested in keeping the building the way it is with the town office door in its original location to speak to bank and town officials and make their views known.

The Cole Block will be 100 years old in 1991 and it would be hardly worthy of its long history and importance to the town to undergo such a major change to its facade.

Stan Howe

FROM THE

Bethel Town Office

In this week's column I would like to address the issue of rising property taxes and the efforts by the town government to make its operations more efficient.

The recent tax bills that were sent out showed a 23 percent increase in the tax rate. Many taxpayers were shocked and angry over the increase in their tax bills.

This increase was not caused by the town government because this year's municipal budget only showed a .011 percent (or near zero percentage) increase over last year's budget.

The cause of the increase was the 45 percent rise in the county tax and the 39 percent increase in the school tax.

Although the Town of Bethel has been doing a good job of keeping taxes down and controlling governmental expenditures, we feel that we can do an even better job. For this reason, an in-house review of the town government operations is now being undertaken. This effort involves the selectmen, town manager, department heads and town employees. The internal review includes the following:

1.) Finding new and expanded non-property tax revenue sources;

2.) Recommendations on reducing or eliminating marginal or unnecessary services and tasks;

3.) Determining which municipal services could better be provided by the private sector rather than the public sector as well as which services could be performed in-house at a lesser cost;

4.) Ways to increase employee productivity;

5.) New ways for municipal government to be even more responsive and sensitive to taxpayer concerns, needs and financial limitations.

In addition, we are also investigating other ways of reducing cost. For example, we are investigating joining the Maine Municipal Association Insurance Risk Pool and looking at various employee health insurance plans.

In summary, the new reality is that the demands on municipal services have dramatically increased over the last four to five years whereas the financial means to pay for them has shrunk. For this reason we must look at streamlining municipal government and making it more efficient and more responsive.

This can also be said of the school system and county government for which a large part of our scarce tax dollars go to support. Perhaps they should also go through a similar internal review process. We have certainly found the effort to be worthwhile and valuable.

In closing, your town government is a business and it should act like a business.

FROM THE

Bethel-Newry

Historical references to town line

In May, 1768, Josiah Richardson for himself and other descendants of his family drew a rude map which gave the general course of the river but only the outline of the town. This plan reposes in the archives of Massachusetts.

It was in 1768, too, that George III imposed the hated Stamp Act, the tax on the American Colonies. From that date on the English Colonies were seeking until ultimately war broke out in 1776. The record shows that Sudbury Canada was settled in 1774. The proprietor's records for the first five years had by then disappeared from the face of the earth, purposely destroyed by fire, it was alleged, owing to certain irregularities. But no significant number of settlers came until the Revolution's end in 1783.

Given this background it is little wonder that the provincial government of Massachusetts, or the legislature of the new state that followed, were not much concerned with the niceties of previous grants and purchases—whether the limits in wild land had been extended, or whether their boundaries were completely straight. Thus no objection was made that the limits of six miles square in the Sudbury Canada grant were extended to nine miles on the southern boundary and 10 on the northern, or that neither of them were completely straight, although a general course was observed.

In 1792 Joseph Twitchell died at his home in Sherburne and in 1795 his son, Eli Twitchell, submitted a plan that gave only the metes and bounds in distance. In 1796 a third plan was made that was satisfactory to the Massachusetts legislature and the Bethel Charter was given that year in the act of incorporation.

During the colonial period one of several land purchases conveyed by the General Court is of particular interest; and that is the purchase by Sarah Bostwick of some 36,000 acres, most of which became the town of Newry in 1805. A like purchase by Phoebe Ketchum of 26,000 acres at about the same time was township A-1, now part of Riley.

It is possible that this year of the Bostwick purchase may be found in Massachusetts archives. It might be a significant factor in the present case. In Bethel's charter reference to "Thomas Town" on the northern boundary indicates a sale from Bostwick purchase, before Newry's incorporation in 1805. And Thomas Town is the entire northern boundary from beech tree to beech tree according to Bethel's charter in 1796.

The Massachusetts archives also reveal that in 1787 the few settlers in the Sunday River valley, claiming 800 acres they had worked on for seven years, asked for either a grant or to purchase. This indicates that the Sarah Bostwick purchase may not have been made previously. If, on the other hand it was made prior to 1780, the Sunday River land was not included, unless, of course, these settlers were squatters on land belonging to someone called Thomas.

All of this leads me to believe that there is too much that is unknown at the present time to require a change in the town line. In 1876 the Law Court could not find any information requiring a change it could recommend to the Legislature, and the southern border was left undisturbed. And I don't see how any new evidence has been discovered to give us a firm conviction as to what the Massachusetts Legislature intended in 1796. The guiding star in this case is not how Maine statutes have changed since 1876 but the intent of the Massachusetts Legislature in 1796, and that of the Maine Legislature in 1820. I can understand how the present surveyors dislike a line that varies, but speculation on the reason why one does is no substitute for evidence, as the Court observed in 1876.

The proposition by Bethel's counsel that in 1796 the Massachusetts Legislature mandated a course of W34°S is merely presumed. In the survey of wildland in the early days of our country, it was common practice for surveyors to make allowance for swamps, rivers, etc., and thus extend the acreage beyond the limits of a given grant.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

Some homeowners, particularly those with older homes that require periodic painting, may be tempted to seek a vinyl or aluminum siding solution.

Before one does, a little thought should go into the decision making process. Besides leaving a building looking characterless and unnatural, synthetic siding may not be as maintenance-free or as cost effective as its promoters believe.

On practical grounds alone, the installation of siding may conceal a problem that needs correcting. In particular, siding may mask rot, seal in rot or through faulty installation contribute to water infiltration resulting in rot.

Wood frame structures need to "breathe" to let out interior moisture produced by cooking, bathing, cleaning and ordinary habitation. Vinyl and aluminum sidings are impermeable; moisture cannot escape through them. Maintenance responsibilities much more serious and costly than periodic painting may await many homeowners down the road.

It should also be noted that siding dents, shatters in cold or from impact, collapses in extreme heat, pops off, scratches and fades. When replacement is required, it may not be possible to match colors. Moreover, it may be necessary to recover a whole wall to replace a small section.

Economic factors also argue against siding. A normal application of vinyl or aluminum siding is figured to cost two or three times as much as a good paint job on wood siding. A sensitive application, retaining existing trim, will cost even more. To break even on expense, the new siding should last as long as two or three paintings before requiring maintenance. Generally this cannot be expected. Although warranties sound good, most of them "exclude any change in color or glass, damage due to accidents, vandalism and exposure to weather, damage to the house and all the problems resulting from faulty installation.

The economic premise that synthetic sidings are energy-conserving is also weak. Aluminum and vinyl sidings are not good insulators simply because they are so thin. Any energy saving may be due to the creation of an air space between the old and new siding, the reduced infiltration due to the new impermeable skin or the installation of some insulating material behind the siding.

Another persuasive pitch for siding has been the argument that it increases property value when the opposite is usually the case. Since siding diminishes the original appearance of a house and creates maintenance problems, the value of the property is seriously affected, especially in the case of an architecturally and/or historically significant structure. And even if the appearance seems not to be affected and deterioration is not apparent, the application of siding may suggest to a prospective buyer that something is being covered up.

Beyond concerns relating to maintenance and cost return, there are, moreover, grave historical and aesthetic considerations against the use of siding on older homes. Most siding jobs alter the original appearance of a house and scale, texture, color and detailing lose their character. Trim is frequently removed. Historical interest is thereby jeopardized and a community resource lost.

If Bethel is going to continue to market itself as a "picture post card" town, homeowners must resist anything that does not provide visitors with the genuine 19th century article. An experienced eye can spot siding in an instant and its existence in a town undermines the credibility of tourism promotion.

Caribou-Speckled Wilderness Bill passes

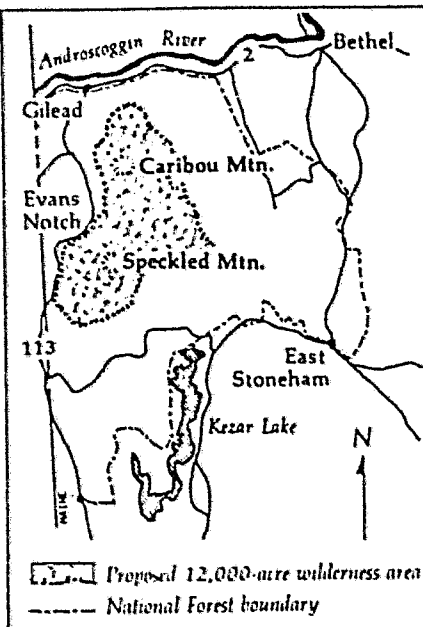

WASHINGTON, D.C.—A reduced version of the Caribou-Speckled wilderness bill passed the House of Representatives last week, designating 12,000 acres of White Mountain National Forest near Bethel as wilderness, but releasing 4,000 previously protected acres for logging and motor vehicle use.

The Maine Wilderness Bill of 1990, which passed the House by unanimous voice, is identical to the version passed by the Senate earlier in the year and will not need to go to conference. President Bush is expected to sign it. "Enactment of this bill would actually release 4,000 acres for harvesting that is currently prohibited," Rep. Olympia Snowe said in a press release Monday.

The remaining protected area will become the first federally-designated wilderness area in the state. It will be open to hunting, fishing, hiking and camping but not to logging, mining, concession development or motor vehicle use.

James St. Pierre, Director of the Maine Woods Project of the national Wilderness Society, said the compromise was an acceptable one. "Conservationists have worked very hard to protect a significant portion of this spectacular area," St. Pierre said. "I think we'll all breathe a sigh of relief that it's finally received permanent protection."

The original recommendation was part of a White Mountain National Forest wilderness proposal introduced in 1983, but was removed from the bill at the demand of the Maine delegation after protests from timber and off-road-vehicle interests. Pending settlement of the issue, the Forest Service has not allowed logging or road development on any part of the tract.

Issues resolved in Bethel Inn suit

SOUTH PARIS—The two sides in a dispute over $1.5 million in loans not repaid by the Bethel Inn Corp., The Bethel Inn Corp. and the owner of the Bethel Inn, Richard D. Rasor, came one step closer to understanding each other in the judge's chambers at Oxford County Superior Court Sept. 24.

The case stems from three loans Casco Northern Bank made to the plaintiffs in 1987 and 1988 for expansion at the Bethel Inn, including the construction of condominiums and enlargement of the golf course.

In December of 1988, according to the plaintiffs, "contrary to the bank's prior conduct," Casco informed them that it would enforce certain maturity dates for two of the loans. Shortly thereafter, Casco demanded immediate payment of all of the loans.

Because Casco had not previously enforced maturity dates and gave only six weeks' notice, the plaintiffs were unable to pay approximately $1.5 million to the bank, its suit states.

Casco then proceeded to prepare for a foreclosure auction, commissioning an appraiser, hiring an auctioneer to take aerial photographs and prepare a brochure, and obtaining legal advice on foreclosure strategy, the suit claims.

The civil action seeks recovery of a prepayment penalty of $21,200 assessed by Casco, and compensation for fees for alternative financing and breach of good faith.

As part of an information-exchange between the sides, the plaintiffs requested that the bank provide directives from the Bank of Boston to any of its subsidiaries, including Casco Northern, concerning loans from Maine; policies on "substandard" loans or credits; and policies on accounts with $50 million in loans in Maine which Casco has "publicly" refused to continue.

The plaintiffs also requested a copy of the loan policy manual, stating that three bank employees have "constantly referred" to it.

John D. Gleason of Portland, attorney for the plaintiffs, was unavailable for comment last Monday but the bank's lawyer, William J. Kayatta Jr., said the plaintiffs agreed in the judge's chambers to drop a request for customer files and scale down their request for documents to specific sections of particular documents.

Both sides also agreed to allow the retroactive extension of a deadline for filing a statement on aspects of the case on which both sides agree.

Casco Northern, in a memorandum stating its opposition, reported it had produced its entire file having anything to do with the plaintiffs.

"The plaintiffs now want this court to order the bank to turn over literally tens of thousands of pages of files on other bank customers, all documents from a sister bank concerning loans in Maine, plus a highly confidential loan policy manual in toto, whether or not the manual in its entirety has anything whatsoever to do with the case," the bank asserted.

"They were looking for a nonexistent needle in a haystack" in hopes that all the documents "would confirm some hidden agenda," Kayatta said. "The question is whether we promised to renew or extend credit past January 1989," he said, adding that the bank did not, and sent a letter informing the plaintiffs—who claim there was an oral agreement that the bank would wait until 20 new condominiums were sold—of its decision.

Two loans made to the plaintiffs in the summer of 1987 for a total of $5,375,000 were due in January of 1989, Kayatta said, but the plaintiffs fell $80,000 short of paying them back on time.

A second loan in February of 1988, for $850,000 to be paid back over 10 years, was contingent on the plaintiffs paying back all other loans on time, Kayatta said. A third loan had been made in July of 1988, for $723,000 to be paid back over six months, but was also not paid back, he said.

In the agreement reached Monday, Kayatta said, the plaintiffs decided to accept specific documents, including a section of the loan manual on prepayment penalties, a policy on ascertaining debt service, and a policy on how the bank determines a potential borrower's ability to carry a loan.

Sheriff's Department logs break-in reports

SOUTH PARIS—Oxford County Sheriff's Department dispatchers logged reports of 10 break-ins Tuesday through Thursday in Norway, Paris, Sumner, Bryant Pond, Locke Mills, West Paris, South Woodstock, and South Waterford. Oxford County Deputy Sgt. Ronald Boutillier is investigating a burglary on an Upper North Pond camp in Locke Mills, where a neighbor reported seeing a vehicle enter and leave the camp road. Boutillier is also investigating a burglary on Lake Christopher in Bryant Pond, a neighboring town to Locke Mills. Both burglaries were reported Tuesday afternoon, the Locke Mills incident at 1:47 p.m. and the Bryant Pond one at 3:22 p.m.

Thirty minutes after the Bryant Pond burglary, Greenwood residents reported finding their house broken into. In adjoining South Woodstock, residents reported two neighboring camps had been broken into at 4:52 p.m., one hour later than the Greenwood burglary was reported.

The first Wednesday incident was reported at 9:46 a.m., when a North Pond, Norway, camp owner told a sheriff's department dispatcher he found his small, gray rowboat, bearing the registration number 3028 missing.

Less than two hours later, at 11:08 a.m., a garage was reported broken into at Bryant Pond. Nothing was missing, the caller said.

Not was anything reported missing when a Sumner mobile home was reported broken into at 2:39 the same afternoon.

Ten minutes later, in Bryant Pond, another resident reported an attempted break at his chalet on Old Route 26. No list of missing items was available concerning that break.

Twelve minutes following the Bryant Pond report, a caller reported a South Waterford burglary at a Bear Pond camp. That 4:57 p.m. caller said an electric mixer, an unspecified amount of money, and other items were missing.

A deputy also was assigned to investigate reports of some items being stolen occasionally from the Greenwood Highway Department garage.

Moose more active as rutting begins

WEST PARIS—In West Paris at approximately 8 p.m. Sept. 19, Francis R. Piccirillo, 25, of Greenwood, struck a moose with his 1988 Dodge pickup when the moose jumped in front of his pickup, according to Maine State Trooper Don Schean. Schean followed the wounded moose into the woods and dispatched the injured animal. The pickup sustained substantial damage, according to Schean, but he did not give a dollar estimate.

According to Maine Game Warden Sgt. Carroll Goodwin of the Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife, Division A barracks in Gray, moose are beginning to rut and are becoming more active.

The bulls move around during the fall rutting season seeking a group of cows with which to mate, Goodwin said.

The large animals generally are not dangerous to humans during the rutting season, Goodwin said, unless a person is in the path a moose is traveling to seek a mate. The bulls will travel long distances following the scent or sound of a cow, he explained. If a person gets between a bull moose and a cow, the bull is likely to view the person as a competitor for the cow, Goodwin said.

SAD #44 Guidance Advisory group meets

The district's Guidance Advisory Council began its third year of annual monthly meetings on Monday, Sept. 10.

The Advisory Council is involved with District Guidance counselors in a collaborative effort to provide the best opportunities to serve the needs of students in SAD #44.

Telstar High School Student Council Co-President Gena Morgan and Advisor Sherri Higgins made a presentation to the Advisory Council on their group's function at the high school. They explained their roles and services and shared their goals for the coming year.

This was followed by discussion of parents concerns about awareness of extracurricular information (i.e. requirements, schedules, time commitment, etc.). Also discussed was the status of the search for a Woodstock/Andover Elementary School counselor and the Council's concern about what is being done at these schools in the absence of a full-time counselor.

The Advisory Council's next meeting is Oct. 1, 7-8:30 p.m. in the fifth grade classroom at Crescent Park Elementary School, Bethel. All interested community members are welcome to attend.

Course on polar geography offered

Polar Geography is the topic of a four-week course offered by SAD #44 Adult and Community Education starting on Wednesday, Oct. 3.

The course will review exploration in the Arctic and the Antarctic as well as provide a look at the physical features of both regions.

Instructor Rudi Honkala will use slides and films to compare the North and South Polar regions with respect to climate, wild life and human activities.

Honkala has extensive experience in both regions, and has recently retired to Bethel. He will also be instructing an Elderhostel session this fall at the Sunday River Inn.

The Wednesday night class will run from 7-9 at Telstar High School. The registration fee is $10, with those 62 and over attending at no charge. To register, call 824-2780.

THE BOOSTERS CLUB held a reception last Thursday night at Crescent Park School for new principal David Murphy. Above, Linda Howe, Boosters Club president, presents a CPS T-shirt to Murphy.

Kelly Cole completes Air Force training

Airman Kelly M. Cole completed Basic Military Training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas, July 27. Next Cole went to Keesler Air Force Base, Biloxi, Miss., where she graduated as a Personnel Specialist, Aug. 31.

On Sept. 24, after spending a few days at home, Cole will report to the Alaskan Air Command at Elmendorf Air Force Base, Anchorage, Alaska, for a tour of three years.

Airman Cole is the daughter of Daniel and Luella Cole of Gilead.

She is a 1989 graduate of Telstar Regional High School.

Georgia Packard is recuperating from a gall bladder operation. We hope this will be the beginning of a return to good health for Georgie.

Everyone is rushing around trying to get the gardens harvested as frost days, or actually nights, are upon us. It seems as if we always get a frost early and then it warms up. That may be good for the apples but not for the rest of the garden.

Lillian Herrick was a supper guest Monday at the home of John and Lorraine Mills. On Tuesday Lorraine Mills took Lillian to South Paris to visit her daughter and to do some shopping.

Jon and Marcia Smith celebrated their 13th wedding anniversary Monday, Sept. 17. She said they went out to dinner but that was all as Jon has a part-time job with Days Inn besides having plenty of studying to do.

Preston Cobb flew in from Colorado Springs where he is attending Bible College to attend the graveside services of his grandmother Lola Cobb who died Sunday at CMMC, Lewiston. Our sincerest sympathy goes to the Cobb family.

Please note that the "Bethel Citizen" correspondents have a Friday noon deadline starting with next week's paper. I'm usually home Thursdays and would appreciate it if you could get your news items to me that day or before.

Rusty and Vickie Hughes of Rumford were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Mills. James was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Ludlam and family in East Bethel.

There was another fire in the blower at Gilbert Manufacturing Co. Wednesday evening. Although it was quickly contained I'm sure it is something they had rather do without.

Lorraine Mills and Lillian Herrick visited Thelma Merrill at Ledgewood one day last week.

John Mills lost another cousin, Malcolm Mundt, last week. This is the third one this year, one of the many adjustments one has to make as one gets older—but it's not pleasant or easy.

Greenwood City

By COLISTA MORGAN

I'm turning back time and rewriting an article which I wrote just 10 years ago at this time.

This wasn't a June day but that couldn't have been better.

I went to the woodland and found nature's mood gentle and quiet. Soft winds fanned the trembling leaves by the path that wound deep into the green breathless shade. Through the trees to the right the shadows flicked the water, as the sunbeams came and went.

I walked beneath the hemlock, pines, and spruces that stood proud in their everlasting green. My steps were slow so that I could enjoy the nodding with the breeze. It was nice to take time for my share of beauty. It was free and there to share with every passerby.

The lacy ferns were so delicate, especially where the brooks had flowed in early summer.

A few spikes of the great mullein stood tall.

I moved on toward the ledges, where I saw the frills of lacy heads and fincuet, bright green foliage, Queen Ann's Lace.

Although these ledges are not high compared to many that I have climbed, I always enjoy sitting here and viewing the ponds and the valley.

The pond at this time is full of algae. As I looked across it, I could imagine that almost anything could appear. The muddy soup at the bottom, lapped with warmth contains the snakes, snapping turtles and many other forms of life. Cattails, lilies, and other flowers rise above the water.

"Pale upon the sunlit pool the waterline lie, in the shadows and the clouds of the reflected sky. And around the green isles of the leaves/The dragonflies in flight/Set the air acquiriving with streaks of rainbow light." Patience Strong.

Leonas and Fay Holt recently joined others of the Holt family at Larry and Dolly Verrill's in South Paris for a cookout. Their son, Wayne, was home from California.

Rena Curtis took Dorothy Curtis to Lewiston to see her surgeon. It was her first outing since her surgery several weeks ago.

Dot Betts was in Portsmouth the first of the week.

On Wednesday members of the "Tired Teachers" and three guests met at the farm homestead of Lettie Brooks in Woodstock for our Christmas party. Lettie and I went at 9 a.m. where we prepared a boiled dinner. The others arrived at noon time. We had a jolly time with an exchange of gifts. All members came except one, Louie Coffin, who was ill. We missed her.

On Sunday all the Holt families were home for the day. It was "Dad's" birthday with a cake, a two hour one, and very good. Fay knows the secret. The men sawed and put in wood for their parents and a load for me. I took the little girls to the woods and the pond while Ann and Jeri helped Fay with the "clean up."

Are you tired of making all that zucchini bread, etc. and don't know what to do with those big, big ones that seem to grow that big overnight? Well try this dish... You'll like it: 4 large or 8 small zucchinis, cubed into 1-inch pieces, 2 large onions and 2 cloves garlic, diced, 3 medium carrots, diced, 1/4 green pepper, diced, 2 large stalks celery, diced, a handful chopped parsley, 2 tablespoons honey, 1, 8-ounce jar of homemade tomato sauce, plus 8 ounce of water, a pinch of each: oregano, sweet basil, or Italian seasoning, and 2 tablespoons of olive oil. Put all ingredients in a 6-quart pot. Mix gently with wooden spoon. Simmer in covered pot for half to three-quarters of an hour. Stir occasionally in the beginning until vegetables begin to simmer down to cook evenly. This tasty dish can also be cooked in pressure cooker for 15 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Turn heat off and let pressure reduce normally. This also can be made with meat, by browning a pound of ground round with onions and garlic, before adding rest of ingredients. Yields six servings.

Karlene and Reg Bachelder and I took a ride to Belfast Sunday to visit with relatives, and came back with Karlene's mother, Julia Goodwin, who will stay in Newry for a short while. On our way back we met Tracy, daughter of Caroline Bachelder, granddaughter of Karlene and Reg, and great-granddaughter of Julia. (Having relationship problems?). There wasn't any services at the Newry Community Church Sunday, Sept. 16-23 on account of Pastor Rodney Hanscom's indisposition. The Newry ladies didn't go bowling this week because of too many other commitments.

The Newry Community Church Ladies Circle had their yearly banquet Wednesday, Sept. 12, with president Sylvia Wright; vice president Gil Seeley; Freda Robertson, secretary; Olive Anderson, Sunshine Lady; and members, Louise Tetley, Cindy Moxcey, and guests Betsy Clark and Rena Powers.

Carlton Barker Jr. and crew have been quite busy installing septic tanks in the neighborhood and mine has been one of them.

Mrs. Chester Millett of North Waterford visited me Friday. Mrs. Walter Heino finished her work at Lovell Thursday after taking care of an elderly lady.

The Republican meeting was well attended. Over 60 people were there. Quite a good gathering for a small town.

Mrs. Helen Grover went to Norway Thursday to see her doctor, then attended the church supper. Doing well for an old gal, don't you think?

I get disgusted reading items telling them how to trap the poor animals that are only hunting for food. I am a great lover of animals. These bloodthirsty people live just as near to me as I want them to.

Lester Coolidge, Jr. and son, Scott, from Hastings, Mich. called on Pete and Peggy Coolidge last week.

Betty Ann Coolidge has had the cast removed from her wrist and a splint in its place. The metal pin will stay until a year.

Millie Jackson joined some of her classmates from the Class of 1944 at Arlene Lowell's for lunch one day last week.

Alder River Grange had a regular meeting with 10 members and several visitors.

Alder River Grange #145 will hold a regular meeting on Sept. 28 at 7:30 p.m. at the Hall.

On Aug. 19 Myra Foster, her children and their spouses put on a Foster-Abbott reunion.

There were about 80 people that attended. They played volleyball, horseshoes and had a baseball game. A board of old and new pictures of the Foster farm and the Foster-Abbott descendants was a gathering for everyone, looking, remembering and talking of good and bad times, past and present.

Everyone brought salads and there were hotdogs, hamburgers and chicken which was barbecued by Dick Stearns, John Foster and Robert Festino.

After the meal, a short business meeting was conducted by Dick Stearns, at which time the following received gifts: For traveling the most distance, George and Natalie (Foster) Lute; the youngest, Sammy-Jo Tyler (great-granddaughter of Myra Foster); the oldest, Myra Foster.

Relatives came from Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and all over Maine. A good time was had by all.

Recently the children of Dick and Jean Stearns, along with relatives and friends, had a surprise anniversary party for them at Linda and Richard Westleigh's. After a buffet supper, they were entertained with slides taken recently of Clara Hamlin, Jo Tyler and Chick Fitzmorris' trip to Alaska.

The young and young heart had a baseball game also.

The same evening there was a surprise birthday party for Myra Foster. She received a cake and gifts. Those attending were Myra Foster; John and Agnes Foster of Andover; Albert Foster of East Bethel; Denise and Robert Festino and daughter Brittany of Saco; Clara Hamlin, Wally, Patty, Ben and Nikki Hamlin of South Waterford; Jo Tyler of Dixfield; Dan, Mary, Cory, Erin and Dan Stearns of Rumford Point; Joan and Bill Roberts of East Bethel; Glendon, Karen, Mathew, Mallory and Michael Thurston; Dick and June Stearns; Pat and Harold Bessey; and the host and family, Rick, Linda, Eric and Sharon Westleigh, all of Rumford Corner; plus George and Natalie Lute of Phillipsburg, Pa.

High Street West Paris

By VIVA WHITMAN

A beautiful Sunday morning and I am writing because I don't expect to be home tomorrow morning. Got some much needed rain yesterday and it was a blustery day. Russell had taken advantage of the weather where it was not raining on Friday afternoon and pulled a lot of our carrots so Saturday morning we started bright and early to cut and blanch them to freeze. Russell had washed them Friday afternoon so they were all ready to go to work on. We have 39 packages so far and only about half done. All this good stuff will taste good during the winter and help on grocery bills.

Last Monday was a day for Russell and I to go get back treatments. Don't know how much good it has done but helps for the time being. Always so much to do in the garden for Russell and I keep busy cooking and helping put things up for the freezer. When we work together the work goes faster.

Monday evening, Peggy went to Bear Mountain Grange with Bertha Benoit who was helping in doing installation. They went for supper as well as the meeting.

Wednesday was the day for doing some butter beans and what a job. However, got one pail full and 15 packages put up. We never did butter beans before and it is quite a job as you have to steam or boil the pods for five minutes before you can shell them as the shells are so hard. It takes a lot of time to do them.

Thursday was the day we did the rest of the butter beans and put up 17 more packages. We were glad to have them done.

Peggy took Bertha to the doctor as she had taken a fall and put her shoulder out of place and cracked a couple of ribs as well as scraping her knees in good shape. Did it in the parking lot at Shop 'N' Save. Her leg just gave way and down she went. The tar is hard to land on and does one up pretty good sometimes.

Charlotte was at Peggy's for supper and then they came down and we played 63 for the evening. Have to have four to play the card game so are always glad when Charlotte comes down. We had a good time playing.

Went for my back and neck again on Friday and got groceries on the way home as well as other errands needing doing.

Peggy wanted to get home as she was expecting company and Myrna and Whitey got here just before noon time as well as Eva Swanson from New Hampshire. Peggy's other daughter Kaye and husband Otto Blossley didn't get there until a little later but they all got together for the last time this fall. Kaye and Otto are heading home tomorrow or I should say to Michigan where Otto has relatives to visit and then home. Myrna and Bernard White will be leaving for Arizona next Friday so they wanted to get together for a good time.

Eva brought Russell a pair of mittens she had made for a gift and she brought me some puzzles to do, knowing I like to do them so well.

I am planning to go down to Wynona's to stay with the girls this week while their parents are on vacation at Eastern States Fair. Got lots of my stuff ready and got to get the rest of it ready to go down right after lunch today.

Don't forget the dance at West Paris on the first Saturday in October and be sure to dress as for Halloween. The best costume gets a prize so come dressed for fun. Refreshments that all like as usual so don't forget.

There is a black and white cat around here that is real friendly and doesn't belong here so if someone has a lost cat, please come and get him. Peggy has taken care of him so far and I don't really want him around as I am allergic to cats so please come for him if he is yours. Also, Peggy still has jar rubbers for sale if anyone needs some. They are to help the Grange in community projects so give her a call at 674-3009 if you need jar rubbers.

Got a wash out this morning and plants watered. Hope they do better now that the weather has cooled off. That humid weather is not good for African Violets.

Peggy is going to Bethel today to visit with Kaye again before she leaves tomorrow.

Hope everyone has a good week ahead and take care especially when coming up on a school bus. Children don't look every time so we have to watch for them.

By CONSTANCE BROADBENT

Dear Alice:

If I had written a column last week, you'd have had a birthday wish on time, but I didn't, so you didn't. This will have to do. I can't believe that you've arrived at the one that qualifies you for a you-know-what discount on Tuesdays in almost all major department stores and restaurants. Wasn't it just the other day that we pooled our babysitting money for a new tube of Clearasil and a Scotch Nap sweater to wear with the "community property" straight gray skirt? And wasn't it just a few days later that you convinced Muddy to let me go dancing at the Totem Pole Ballroom at the tender age of 15, because the boy in question was that "nice" Ronnie Brinn who, when he wasn't editing the newspaper column or presiding over the student council, donated his time and his teeth to hockey? (He wasn't bad to look at, as I recall, provided he didn't smile)...but at any rate, I got to dance to Guy Lombardo, thanks to your intervention on my behalf.

Now, thanks to the time machine, we find ourselves dancing in place, walking in space, arming with mace. In the mid-50s we were teens without trouble. Nowadays, we co-exist with chaos, and we're the ones in the mid-50s. Yikes...All "yikes" aside, life proceedeth...While you "Arma Virumque cano..." in the burghs, we country cousins are caught up in fund-raising, fair-going, conventioning, canning, the last-of-the-season church supper, the first-of-the-season leaf turnings.

We did our Grange Fair last week on a drizzly Saturday that worked to our advantage...droves of shoppers sampled our wares, bought out our baked goods, ate Jeannie Kimball's fresh fried doughnuts, took chances on our raffles. They left with their arms full and our coffers filled. The 50/50 raffle was a success once again, and we split the "take" with Julie Whitman, of the Mountain View Restaurant (the new breakfast and lunch operation in our corner country store). A young mother, Julie was last seen shopping for something for herself for a change.

Later we'll pull the prize winning ticket on the "locally crafted settler" when we do our October boiled dinner. We'll sell more tickets in the coming weeks...I'd offer to put your name in, but I'm afraid you'd win, and I have a vision of you and Gerald pattering along the Merit Parkway at rush hour with the chair tied to the roof of Aunt Dot's old Maverick...and the thought prevents me from suggesting that you buy into the game.

Our postmaster and fellow Granger, Caroline Merrill, had to skip the fair in order to take the 8th annual NAPUS (National Association of Postmasters of the United States) Convention at Niagara Falls for a week. She and a few other "post-people" motored to the affair in grand style in the RV of Ellie Ring, Retired Postmaster of Turner. (That's where you were last time you and his ribs visited...when you called in the middle of the night to say that you were taking the scenic route and would be along shortly). Postmasters along for the ride included Vernon Inman and his wife Miriam of West Paris; Shirley Cummings of North Turner; and Nancy Tapley of Locke Mills.

The group divided its time among seminars, sightseeing and shopping. Caroline picked up tips on health, organization skills, and professionalism while in attendance, and says that she's anxious to implement some of the ideas.

Meanwhile, in the Who's-Going-

Who's-Been-Where-Department...our "Village Seniors" assembled recently at the Locke Mills Town Hall for luncheon, etc. Grace Morrill, Ruby and Clara Rolfe, Helen Saunders, Olive Head, and the two Frances Bennetts enjoyed the outing and the nature slides. Today they're off on a "Leaf the Driving to us" (I just made that up...maybe I should go into advertising...) adventure that will take them on a foliage tour of the White Mountain, across the Kancamagus Highway, with a shop-stop in North Conway on the way home.

So, sister Margaret, aka Alice Feeney, here's the scoop...In the coming weeks, we'll be all aflutter with "getting-ready-for" activity. The Donnellis and the Curtis are coming up for another Fryeburg Fair reunion weekend. Before they get here (in about 10 days) we hope to paint the new steps and the old door, make drapes for the kitchen slider, lift the dahlias, chip up brush and leaves for the perennial beds, put mulch for the perennials, solve the crisis in the Middle East...By the time they leave, we'll be starting on the crafts for the church fair (first Saturday in November) food preparations for the annual Grange Harvest Supper (sometime in mid-October) which will follow on the heels of a supper for local Republicans...all in the name of fun and funds...and, if there's a spare moment, we'll size the walls of the rooms that have been expecting to be papered since back in 1987 some time.

There's just no end to the endeavors...this life is even busier than the last one...Stay in your classroom for a few more years, Mag. There you know your limits and your expectations. You can look forward to the flurry when you retire. By then, maybe I'll have written a handbook on the subject...how about... "Rest a Minute: I have Another Job for You..." or... "There is Life after Life"...I'll work on the title.

In the interim, try to enjoy your new status as a card-carrying AARPist. Infuse the gray cells with oxygen as you peripatet to the music. And remember, "Tis better to have gone 'aetas media' than to have gone through life without ever tasting Coffee Heath Bar Crunch." Hugs to Gerald the arbiter, Anne the journalist, and Jane the tortologist...Feliz Navidad ex tempore (it's okay to mix the blessing when you don't remember the Latin).

Love, C.B.

Irene Leighton of Rumford and Mrs. Gordon Dillingham had lunch at the new Chinese restaurant in South Paris, Thursday.

Mrs. Gordon Dillingham called on Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bracy of Brett Hill, South Paris on Wednesday. Mrs. Bracy is not feeling very well. Leo Hemmingway of Oxford and his daughter Mrs. Gordon Dillingham drove to Lewiston on business, Friday. Bryant Pond Historical Society held their annual meeting. The president for the coming year is Olive Risko. Other officers will be the same. The museum closed for the summer season after the meeting. The curator Larry Billings wishes to thank everyone who helped with this project. The Historical Society deals with the past and it's relationship to the present and future. All this is important to each of us.

Saturday night there was a light frost, however, Arthur and Sylvia were over and we picked two pails of green tomatoes just in time to save them. Cukes are still trying to bear

As the chlorophyll oozes from the maple leaves, leaving them in their natural red color, and the bears devour the chokecherries, we have more evidence of the coming season. VI Bernier was caught without her camera when she was on her way home from a visit here and met a huge bull moose with a large rack.

When I first began to write this column I had to get it into the mail by Monday. After a major change in ownership and policy, I had to get it in to the mail by Friday prior to publication. Now we are set back to Thursday. I need a gift of prophecy to write the news before it happens. I sure appreciate it when folks call in and give me their news.

We learned with regret this week of the death of Robert Scott, a former Bethel resident and history teacher and football coach at Gould Academy. For the last several years he had lived in Unity where he taught at Unity College until he retired. Our sympathy to his widow Marguerite.

For the past two Saturdays we have attended 80th birthday celebrations of relatives. On Sept. 8 I went with Christine to a surprise "Happy 80th" for my sister-in-law, Eva Barker of Oxford, at the I.O.O.F. Hall in South Paris. Last Saturday Norma and I, Dodi Adams and Ethel Turner went to the Stone Camp on Five Kazars to extend our best wishes to Herbert Stone on his 80th.

Mrs. Christine Kimball underwent some medical tests last Friday at Stephens Memorial Hospital and also more tests this Friday. Her callers this week were Mrs. Mary Dooen and Alberta Ridlon of Norway.

Mrs. Elmira Doyen with daughter Connie Hindman were in Lewiston Monday for her eye check-up.

I was in Rumford Monday for a medical appointment and on daughter Dottie Adams. Wednesday I had to go to Norway and in the afternoon with Norma attended the soccer and field hockey games at Gould Academy.

Mrs. Connie Hindman and her mother Mrs. Elmira Doyen were in Berlin, N.H. Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Norma Salway spent Friday night with the Bernie Gatchells in Auburn and went to the "Largest Garage Sale" in Lewiston, Saturday.

Saturday, Sept. 15, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Vatcher had as company for the weekend Robert Anderson, Jr. from Massachusetts.

Saturday, Oct. 6, there will be a dance at West Paris Grange. Come dressed for Halloween. There will be prizes for the best costume. So get a good one. You might win.

Saturday, Oct. 29, a supper at North Paris Hall, starting at 5 p.m. Homemade gingerbread with real whipped cream.

Saturday, Sept. 15, Nathan Isley fell and had to go by Tri-Town Ambulance to Stephens Memorial Hospital. He had some stitches on his shoulder.

Callers have been Mr. and Mrs. Roger LaCroix, Joe Kallnowski and Sherry and Jason Thayer. Jason stayed and we visited Joe and Madge Vatcher and Barbara Pelt. Jason likes to watch Barbara's chickens.

Richard Murphy and crew have been doing some work for Joe Kallnowski.

It seems it can shower very easy. Some had snow flurries.

Saturday, Oct. 27, West Paris Grange is having a flea market and food sale. Tables are $2 each. Call Mary Lovejoy, 674-2147.

Thursday, Sept. 20, I went to the delicious benefit supper put on by the Woodstock Willing Workers for Roger Benson. A very good crowd. Joe Kallnowski has had for company Mr. and Mrs. Herman Card, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Record and Forrest Record.

Rollins, Nancy Chapellier, Milton and Eleanor Inman, Doodie Reid, Marshall and Susan Inman, Tony Bouchard, Walter and Kim Inman, Vernon and Walter, Jr. Refreshments were served.

Lila Farrington of Rumford visited with Elizabeth Senett for a few days.

Anne Fox was in Bridgton for a doctor appointment on Monday.

Florence Hall and Gertrude Hutchins were shopping in Rumford.

Louise Powell of Hale and Bernice Wing of Dixfield called on Alma Hewey on Tuesday.

Nephew Keith Hall, wife Frances, Orland and Hilda Crocker called on Florence Hall Saturday.

Anne Fox attended a Ladies Aid meeting with a group at the home of Betty Moore, East Andover, on Wednesday.

Gertrude Hutchins was in Lewiston for a doctor appointment on Thursday.

Elizabeth Senett went on the bus to Rumford on Wednesday.

Last Sunday's "Rally Day" was the beginning of a new year for all ages.

Marge Stinson's object lesson on follow, learn, obey God's word. Puppets were enjoyed, a jail for anyone not dressed like a cowboy or Indian, prizes for everyone, and just a fun time with Missionaries Jim and Polly Browne. Our thanks to all who made this possible.

Pastor Grover shared the service with Jim and Polly Browne. It was interesting as they shared their experience in Panama. Mr. Browne used Deut. 2 at this time.

Missionary moments: A letter of thanks from the Pears in Sri Lanka who received monies from our Sunday School. Jim and Polly shared together on their work.

Closing hymn: Marilyn Martin played "Without Him."

Dinner was enjoyed at noon, cowboy style. Games and prayer finished up the day of beginnings at Sunday School. A new fall season of activities and services is planned.

South Arm residents air more complaints in Andover

By BARBARA ADAMS

South Arm Road reconstruction was again a source of dispute at the Andover Board of Selectmen meeting.

South Arm property owners Donald and Maria Smith, Andy Phillips and Skip and Robin Phillips attended the Sept. 18 meeting.

The Smiths asked when the construction would proceed.

Fred Emerson, chairman of the selectmen, said Steve Swasey's construction crew was waiting for the use of a large bulldozer, and work would resume in a day or two.

Maria Smith commented on Selectman Brian Mills' stated unwillingness to have the road paved. "If Selectman Mills felt $37.32 a ton quoted by Pike Industries was too much then other prices should have been sought for comparison," she said.

Donald Smith asked, "Why did we (the town) have to tear a road up before we'd decided if we wanted to pave it? It boggles my mind that it was a paved road that was torn up. Neither of the two sections are going to be tarred, and it is all your fault."

Mills said, "I accept the blame. There are other residents in Andover who don't live on South Arm Road. I'm not against paving."

"The town spent a lot on paving other places in town," he said. "Thousands of dollars were spent in legal fees, and as far as I am concerned the paving isn't worth a nickel. I would spend twice as much (as $37.32 a ton) to get it done right rather than spend half as much and not have it done right. Every cent in the reconstruction and paving account is not to be spent on South Arm Road. It is not going to be done this year."

Emerson told the Smiths that they would be better served to attend the next selectmen's meeting to discuss the matter when a third selectman would be in attendance to give his opinion.

The Smiths also again asked the progress of electrical installation on South Arm, and town administrative assistant Rebecca Schachter said she was expecting to hear from CMP this week, and if she didn't, she would call them again on Monday.

Both the selectman and the Smiths voiced their objection to CMP's five-year plan which would allow anyone to "come on free" after five years; CMP will be notified.

Skip and Robin Phillips, who bought their camp last year, objected to removal of 20 yards of gravel from their property that left them without a loop driveway with two entrances.

"We want our circle loop driveway with two entrances back," they said.

Emerson said, "I can only tell you what Steve Swasey has done in the past with a similar situation. When he did basically the same thing he put loan on (the area), grassed it, and put the driveway back."

The Phillips agreed to the installation of two, 12-inch culverts if necessary, and the selectmen voted to install them if required; and otherwise to put the gravel back, slope it, grass it, and re-establish the driveway.

Regarding moved property markers on their property, Andy Phillips asked, since his property originally went back 100 feet from the road, that after the reconstruction of South Arm was completed, if he could move his rear marker back to re-establish the 100 feet on the property. Emerson told him that wasn't possible.

"Our lot is 100x100 feet," Phillips said, "and you've taken a piece 10 feet wide and 100 feet long off the front of the property. For 30 years we and others before us have paid taxes on that 1,000 square feet."

Emerson explained that the town taxes camp lots on a camp-lot basis, not by square footage. The basic tax rate on land between a half-acre and one acre is $17.30; and it is $14.75 on less than half an acre, Emerson said.

For example, the basic rate, he said, would be $14.75 if the land were a fourth-acre or a third-acre.

writing."

The board agreed to ask AVCOG to meet with them.

Witt also said that in a prior selectmen's meeting, Chairman of the Selectmen, Fred Emerson, said he intended to meet with the planning board members to notify them they could not indiscriminately exceed state regulations without a town ordinance.

"I wish he would come and meet with us," Witt said.

In other business at the Sept. 17 meeting, the planning board approved a Boise Cascade plan to build a road and a 55-foot bridge across Sawyer Brook on company land.

Boise forester Brian Mulligan sought approval from the board, he said, after reading in the paper about a recent dispute of property in this area being in the flood plain.

Witt agreed that the right-of-way would cross a 100-year flood plain. Mayberry pointed out that, following state regulations, the board could ap-

Curriculum

at all levels get basically the same thing," says Morton—who chaired the Social Studies curriculum committee. This doesn't mean that every teacher teaches exactly the same thing. Morton says the curriculum guide accounts for about 80 percent of what a teacher teaches. The remaining 20 percent is left to the discretion of the teacher.

"Teachers have freedom to teach to their expertise," Morton explains.

The basis for the curriculum are the state goals and objectives. The Social Studies curriculum in SAD #44 seeks to get students to develop an understanding of their place in the world—including their place within their families, in their towns, their state, their county, and in the global village. At the same time, the curriculum seeks to get students to learn about others in their communities, state, nation and world—and to empathize with them.

Students in SAD #44 are exposed to Social Studies in every grade, although in some of the upper grades the courses are elective.

Nevertheless, a Telstar student must have three years of Social Studies in high school in order to graduate. Morton says this is unusual among Maine schools. "We're one of the few schools to require three credits in Social Studies for graduation. We're on the leading edge (among schools in the state)."

In addition to alternating courses in American history and world history prove the project on the same basis as they had approved the building permit of Adolard "Ducky" Cayer, since flood elevations in the area have never been established.

It will also be necessary for Boise to receive approval from the Department of Environmental Protection.

"With the DEP, either such things go through a permit by rule," Milligan said, "or for those that don't, there is a real long permit process."

Also, the Land Use Regulation Commission, under the board by letter that it has issued a building permit to James Schepis of Peabody, Mass., to erect a 26x40 permanent residence on 41 acres in Andover North Surplus, 50 feet from Sawyer Notch Road. This property does not come under the jurisdiction of the local planning board.

"The only thing that impacts us," Witt said, "is that they'll be using town roads to get there."

and geography, Telstar juniors and seniors can pick and choose among more than a dozen mini-courses, lasting for just one quarter.

Among the most popular of these electives are: Native Americans, Black Studies, and The Causes of World War II.

One of the hardships teachers must overcome in teaching Social Studies, according to Morton, is the lack of good textbooks.

The texts are written by committee, he says, in such a way as to not offend anyone. "They (the textbook publishers) want a bland view," he complains.

An examination of four of the texts being used in the district confirmed this view.

The 5th Grade text "The United States Past to Present," published in 1985 by Heath. In general the book focuses on politics and draws almost no attention to details of life in America. There is nothing on what it would have been like to have been a grade school student in Colonial America, or an Indian, or a slave, etc.

The Indian question—the way in which settlers pushed the Indians off their lands and the way in which the new American government made treaties with the Indians only to break them—is not dealt with.

Nor is the slavery question dealt with—the way in which the Founding Fathers, and later Congresses, gave in to the southern states on the question of slavery until a Civil War had to be fought to rectify a steadily worsening situation, whose aftereffects are felt to this day.

The way that American history is presented by the Heath book is as a chronological development, with no developments singled out as more important than others. There are no drama.

And one of the great problems, according to Morton, is that all the textbook companies put out the same sort of texts—devoid of the richness of historical drama.

"There's not a nickel's worth of difference between any of them."

The department allotted $13,000 for textbooks for grades K-7 at the beginning of the present five-year curriculum plan. New texts will be examined before a new curriculum is adopted next year.

Among the other books in the Heath series being used are "The World Past to Present" and "The World Today." Both of which are middle school texts.

To its credit, the former has a good exposition of the rise of Islam—certainly a plus, given the present situation in the Mideast.

But the book fails completely to present any sort of appraisal of the legacy of colonialism as an explanation for the recurring outbreaks of war in the Third World.

Regions and countries are discussed from the point of view of geography and culture, with little discussion of politics and economics, and no discussion of population pressures.

In the section on Vietnam, there are two short paragraphs on the U.S. war effort there—with no discussion of why the U.S. became embroiled in a civil war.

In general, the world is presented as a jumble in "The World Past to Present."

In "The World Today," there is more focus on the present, but there is still no discussion of causes and effects in history. Things just happen at certain dates.

In the 8th Grade course on American History, the Houghton Mifflin text "This is America's Story" is used. This text improves on some of the problems in the 5th Grade text. It notes the irony of Puritans coming to the New World for religious freedom and then denying that freedom to dissenters from the faith. (But it doesn't touch the issue of killing so-called "witches.")

It also notes that the sale of slaves "cruelly broke up families." It has a good chapter on life in colonial America, and in a later chapter has nice vignettes on life in colonial families.

To its discredit, in its discussion of the Constitutional Convention (where delegates refused to open their proceedings with any prayer), the textbook prints the Pledge of Allegiance and notes it was written in 1892. While the original pledge was written in that year, the phrase "under God" was added during the Eisenhower Administration and was certainly not in keeping with the discussions at the Constitutional Convention.

Morton points out that much of what appears in textbooks is put there by the textbook companies to appease (conservative) political interests in Texas and California, because those two states are the big purchasers of textbooks.

Morton, and others, rely on outside readings, guest lecturers, field trips, and study projects to get across what the texts do not.

Talking about the way his students in the mini-courses relate to the novels he often uses, Morton says, "They'll remember more from reading a novel than from those garbage texts."

Crescent Park School 5th Grade Social Studies teacher Mary Newcomb likes the Heath text insofar as the reading level is appropriate for the abilities of her students.

And she likes the way each chapter is introduced by presenting a number of questions—sort of priming the students' minds for the information that will be presented. But she doesn't rely too heavily on it. "I would say I use it as a core," she says, "and then build on it."

Some of the extra teaching she brings to bear includes taking field trips to colonial settings, and having local historian Stan Howe come in to class and talk about the way Bethel was during the Civil War era.

Newcomb does not worry too much about how good or bad the text is, since it is just part of what she uses in teaching about American history.

"There was a time when a curriculum was set up and a book was assigned," she says. "But those times have changed."

Morton points out that a good teacher will be an effective teacher despite the text he or she is burdened with.

"When it's all said and done, it's a matter of having the right teacher in the classroom with the kids," he says.

He singles out 7th Grade teacher Donna Lunney for doing a good job teaching Maine studies despite a text that's severely dated.

"We're hoping someone will come out with a new text," he says.

In its absence, Lunney still has great success with a project on trip planning. Students learn geography, culture, history, math, economics and ecology as they plan imaginary trips throughout the state.

Morton says it's difficult to judge whether Telstar graduates are better citizens because of all the Social Studies they take during 12 years in the district. But he likes to think they are. He's proud to point out that two candidates in this fall's state elections are former students of his—Jeff Mills and Sue Fraser.

And, he adds, "a respectable number" of Telstar grads go to college to major in fields allied with Social Studies.

His only complaint: too much bureaucratic paperwork keeping teachers from spending more time on teaching.

Maine's fabulous foliage

Autumn in Maine is a wonderful time for automobile travel. Besides viewing the blazing colors of the leaves, you can stop to enjoy such autumn activities as harvest fairs, church suppers, arts and crafts, and special local events.

Maine's hills and lakes:

On this tour you'll see the brilliant colors of Maine's hardwoods along rivers and lakes and drive leisurely through rolling valleys dotted with farm stands.

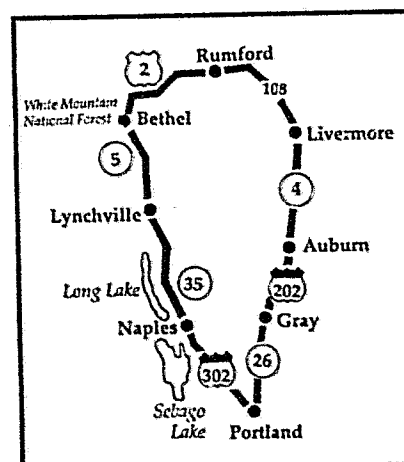

Start this Maine tour anywhere on the loop. From Portland, drive west on U.S. 302, enjoying views of Sebago Lake through the colorful autumn leaves en route to Naples. You can take an excursion around Long Lake aboard the paddleboat "Songo River Queen."

Continue north on Route 35, overlooking Long Lake and picturesque Crystal Lake, to Lynchville, site of Maine's famous international signpost (on which are the names of nine nearby towns: Norway, Paris, Denmark, Naples, Sweden, Poland, Mexico, Peru, and China).

Then drive north on Route 5 to Bethel along the eastern border of the White Mountains National Forest, enjoying good views of the mountain foliage.

Head east on U.S. 2 to Newry, site of the Artist's Covered Bridge. Built in 1872, it is one of the state's most photographed covered bridges. Continue on U.S. 2 east to the industrial city of Rumford, home of Oxford Paper Company, along the Androscoggin River.

At Rumford, follow Route 108 south for splendid views of the foliage and the surrounding hills and lakes. At Livermore take Route 4 to Turner and Auburn south along scenic Lake Auburn. This route takes you through hardwood forests which are ablaze with brilliant colors.

Fall foliage photo tips

October in New England is a special season for the amateur photographer. Dramatic skies, morning dew, and evening sunsets enhanced by the foliage offer countless subjects to be captured on film.

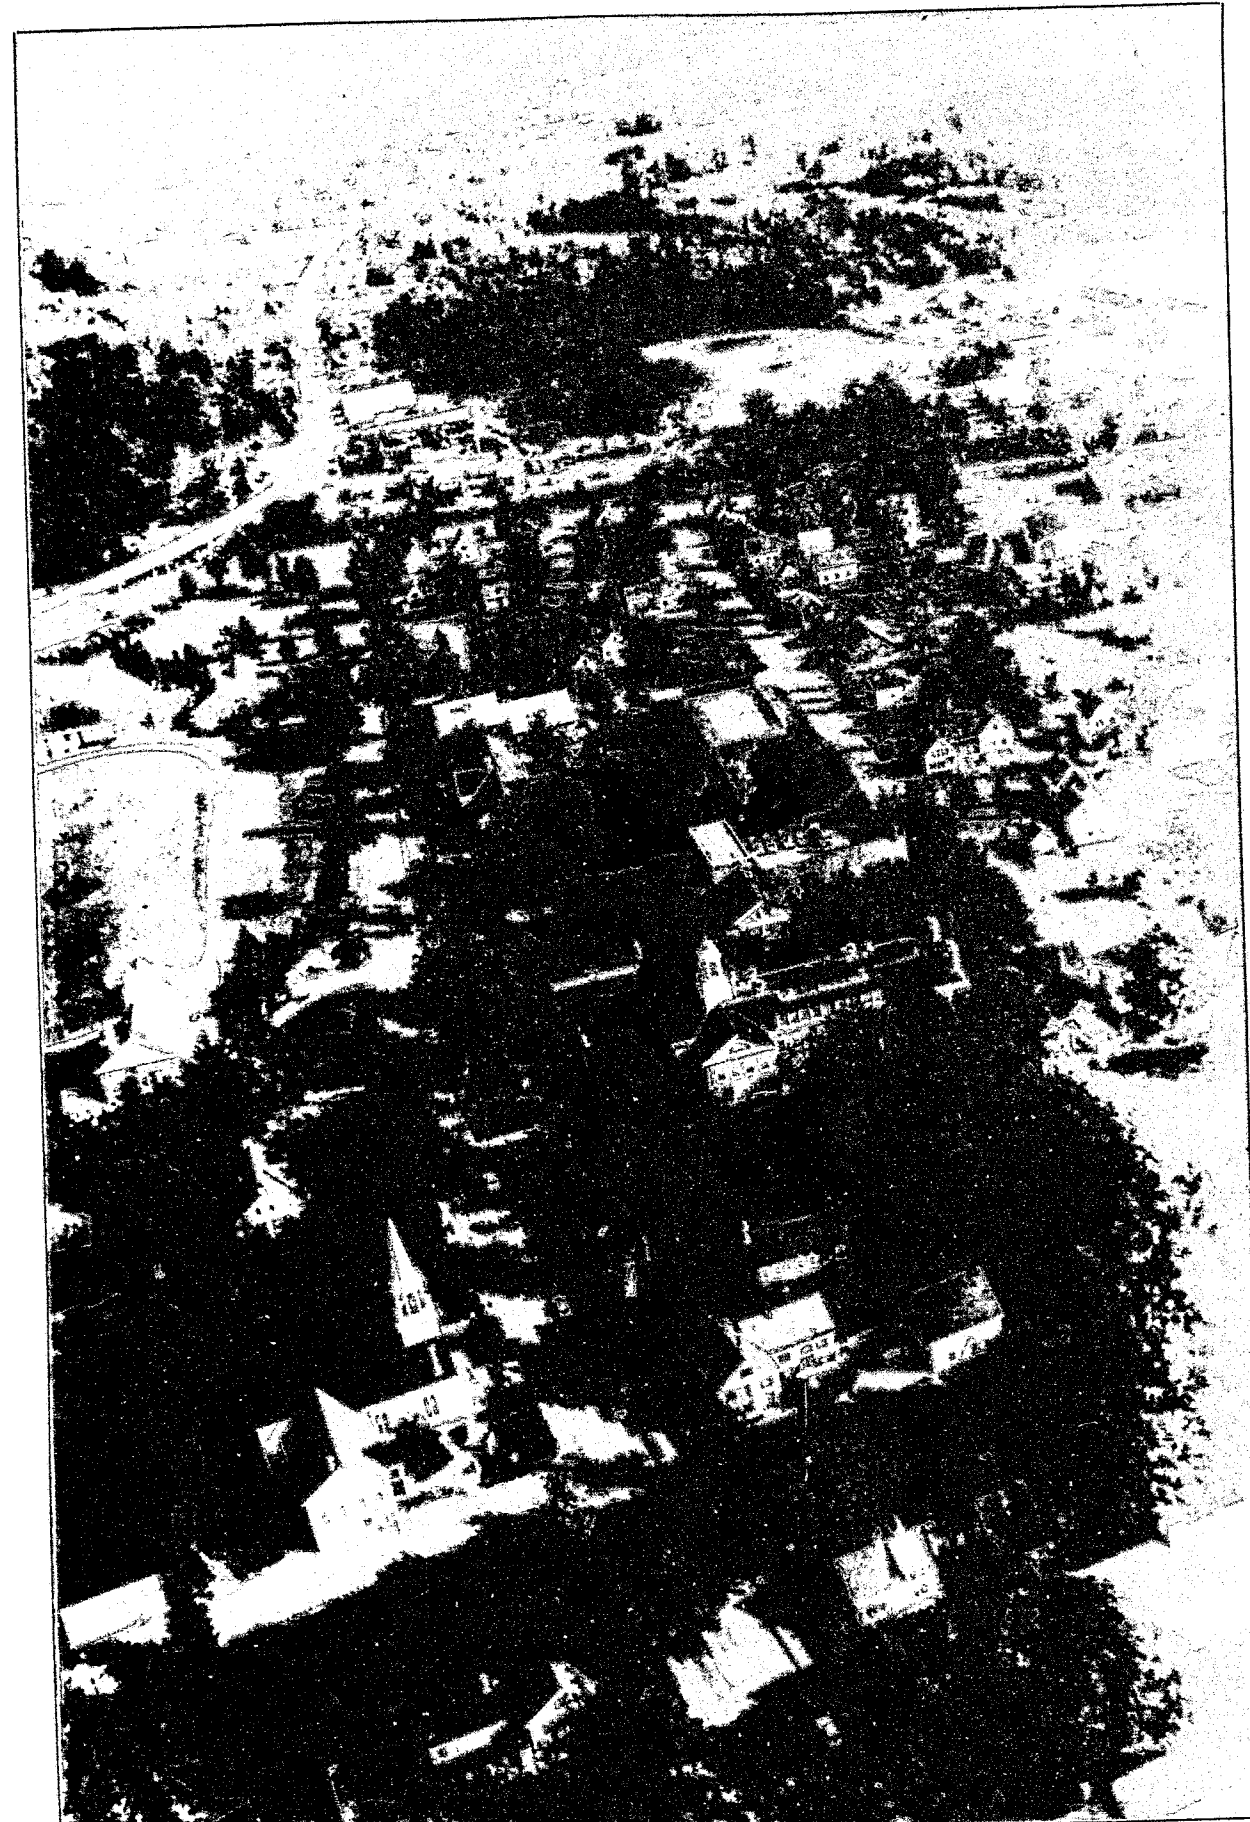

The following are fall photo-taking tips:

- 1.) Pull completely off the road before taking any pictures. Activate your emergency flashers. Stand away from your car and the traffic flow.
- 2.) Avoid long, scenic shots which encompass the countryside. Distant colors appear brilliant but often photograph dull.
- 3.) Bring plenty of film. Stores can be few and far between on backroads. Stock up before you leave home, and keep the film away from direct sunlight.
- 4.) Blue skies make a great contrasting background.
- 5.) Autumn colors look best in pictures when struck by full sunlight.
- 6.) Good foliage photo subjects include white churches, roadside stands, country fairs, campus events, auctions and antique shows.
- 7.) Capture unusual shots. Floating leaves on a river, reflections of colorful trees on a lake, or an autumn sunset offer picture-perfect possibilities.

CRISP FALL AIR and blue, blue skies has replaced the haze of summer above the Gould Academy campus.

Why leaves turn color in the fall

Indian myth tells us that heavenly hunters killed the Great Bear of the Heavens in the fall and its blood dripped over the forests, coloring some leaves red. Other leaves turned yellow when fat splattered out of the celestial caldron as the hunters cooked the meat.

AAA Maine reports that the U.S. Department of Agriculture takes a less romantic view.

In spring and summer, leaves manufacture food for the trees in cells containing the green pigment chlorophyll. Leaves also contain the same yellow/orange substance that gives carrots their color, but the greater amount of chlorophyll keeps them green.

In the fall, drops in temperature and shorter hours of daylight begin to stop the food-making process and the chlorophyll breaks down, leaving the yellow-orange colors.

At the same time, cool nights trap sugar in the leaves, and this forms a red pigment. Differing amounts of red and yellow pigment account for the riot of colors in autumn leaves.

Sunlight affects the brightness of foliage, according to AAA. Exposure to strong fall sunlight tends to bring out brilliant colors, while prolonged cloudy weather brings out pastel shades.

Few regions of the world have these showy displays. The abundance and variety of hardwood trees in New England, together with favorable weather conditions, have made it one of the finest of all foliage areas.

The following is a capsule guide to hardwood leaf colors. Remember that foliage colors will vary somewhat due to weather conditions.

Yellow: American elm, beech, birch, Norway maple, poplar, silver maple, striped maple, willow, mountain ash (has red berry).

Red: Black cherry, pin oak, sumac, white oak.

Scarlet: Red maple, scarlet oak.

Mixture: Ash (yellow-dark purple), black oak (red-orange-brown), sugar maple (yellow-orange-scarlet).

Horizons/55

Course offered on financial planning for retirement

"Financial Planning Before and After Retirement" will be the topic of the final installment of an eight-part Horizons/55 educational series scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. on Sept. 26 in Chairmen's Room A and B at Central Maine Medical Center.

Ken Murray, a retirement specialist with IDS Financial Service Inc., will be the featured speaker. He will discuss a number of topics, including determining net worth, evaluating spending habits, controlling taxes, building retirement income-producing assets, offsetting inflation, home equity, and safely maximizing income from assets.

Murray is a certified financial planner who joined IDS in 1980. He has completed numerous financial planning educational programs as required by the International Board of Standards and Practices for Certified Financial Planners. He is a former IDS district manager.

His presentation will last approximately two hours.

Anyone interested in registering for the last part of Horizons/55's "Pre-retirement Planning" series is urged to call 795-2905. Long-distance callers may use the Horizons/55 toll-free number, 1-800-564-4555. Seating is limited, so interested persons are urged to call early.

Horizons/55 is Central Maine Community Health Corporation's senior care services program.

Dr. Limoges to speak on dental health

"Maintaining a Healthy Smile" will be the topic of a Horizons/55 presentation scheduled for Sept. 28 from 1-3 p.m. at Lewiston-Auburn College, Room 116, on Westminster Street in Lewiston.

Dentist Robert Limoges, D.M.D., will be the featured speaker. He will discuss maintaining healthy teeth and gums throughout a lifetime.

Limoges graduated from St. Michael's College in Winooski, Vt., and was awarded his doctor of dental medicine degree from Tufts University in Boston. He is a member of several professional organizations, and is currently president of the Maine Dental Association. He writes "Value Your Smile," a column which appears in the Lewiston Sun-Journal Sunday.

BEAU JEST MOVING THEATRE will fuse dance, music, mime, singing and satire at Gould Academy Thursday, Oct. 4 at 7:30 p.m.

Beau Jest Moving Theatre to Perform at Gould Oct. 4

The acclaimed Beau Jest Moving Theatre will fuse dance, music, mime, singing, and satire for the Gould Academy Performing Arts Series opening show for the 1990-91 season, Thursday, Oct. 4, at 7:30 p.m. in Bingham Hall.

Tickets are $2 and are available at the door.

Reviews for the show by noted New England theatre critics are highly positive.

One commented, "They are the noisiest bunch of mimers I've ever seen, talking, singing and mimicking the sounds of everyday life as they sweep the audience up in a world of imaginative movement."

The performance promises to be quite funny—one of their favorite satires is of television's Mr. Rogers, and a Boston Globe critic said, "The scenes contain the snappiest satire

Columbus Day Weekend—Arts and activities

Mahoosuc Arts has expanded its annual Columbus Day weekend activities to include two afternoons of a Showcasing of Western Maine performing artists and an evening with Joe Perham and the Casco Bay Chorus.

This, combined with Sunday River's Fall Festival Weekend craft show and a performance by Devonsquare, make the weekend of Oct. 6 and 7 the one weekend local families won't want to leave western Maine.

Competitive athletes will want to support the Arts Council by running up Sunday River's Three Mile trail to compete for a host of awards highlighted by a new pair of alpine skis. This race is the final event in Ski Maine's Peak to Peak Series.

Families will enjoy the fall foliage while supporting the Arts Council by registering to hike to the top of Three Mile Trail and riding the Locke Mountain triple chair lift back to the base of the mountain.

Tilly the Trolley will also be available to pick you up at any of the base lodges and deliver you to the afternoon Showcasing at White Cap Lodge where the Arts Council will feature various western Maine folk, country and rock and roll musicians, as well as various storytellers and magicians.

The schedule of events for the weekend will run as follows:

Saturday, Oct. 6:

8-9 a.m.—Registration for Hike/Walk/run, South Ridge.

9:30 a.m.—Start for Hike/Walk/Run.

12-4 p.m.—Saturday Showcase at Bumps, White Cap Lodge. Performers include Ross Swain, Jeep Wilcox, Sweet Clover, Sam Chapman, Douglas Watts, and Sky Frontier. Each set will last approximately 30 minutes.

5-7 p.m.—Devonsquare at Bumps.

8 p.m.—Joe Perham and Casco Bay Chorus at Bingham Auditorium, Gould Academy.

Sunday, Oct. 7:

12-4 p.m.—Sunday Showcase performers include Val Seaburg & Co., Magicians Jeff and Tammy Mills, Marvin Boone, Dan Rollins, and Rag Tag Theater.

Tickets to the Showcase are $5 for adults and $2 for students per afternoon. Tickets for Devonsquare will be available at the door at Bumps.

Tickets for Joe Perham are $4 for adults and $2 for students at the door at the Bingham Auditorium the evening of the performance.

For more information regarding any of these events, please call Mahoosuc Arts Office at 824-3575.

Enrichment education is essential to child development and personal growth. These exposure workshops encourage young children to explore, learn by doing, feel good about themselves, and continue to be active learners.

The workshops are held at the Extension Office on Olson Road in South Paris unless otherwise noted. Registration is going on now and can be requested from the University of Maine CE, RR2, Box 1738, South Paris, Me., 04281, phone, 743-6329.

Maine-made exhibitors sought for show

The Maine Small Business Development Center invites Maine manufacturers and/or sales representatives of Maine-made giftware products to apply to be exhibitors at the seventh annual Maine Products Trade Show. The show will be held on March 17-19, 1991 at the Cumberland County Civic Center in Portland and will draw buyers from all over the United States. It is open to the trades only. This year's show attracted 2,000 buyers from all over New England and from as far away as California. Representing specialty shops, department stores, gift boutiques, executive gift services, food distributors, and gourmet shops. Potential exhibitors may contact the Maine Small Business Development Center for an application packet. The deadline for submitting applications is Nov. 1. To guarantee the quality workmanship for which Maine products have a reputation for, participation in the show is juried. Potential exhibitors and buyers interested in attending the show can obtain further information by calling Tiffany Wood at 207-780-4420.

Flu vaccination dates scheduled

The Bethel Area Health Center will be sponsoring Flu Vaccination drives at the following locations and times: Wednesday, Sept. 26, Andover Congregational Church, 1:30-2:30; Thursday, Sept. 27, Bethel Area Health Center, 5:30-7; Tuesday, Oct. 2, Bethel Senior Citizens Center, 12:30-2; Friday, Oct. 12, Woodstock Town Office, 1:30-2:30. An additional flu clinic will be offered at the Bethel Area Health Center on a Saturday morning in October, the date and time to be announced in the future.

Extension to offer 'Eat Hearty' healthy heart course

Meals that are delicious, yet low in fat, cholesterol, salt, and calories is the topic of the "Eat Hearty" course being offered by the University of Maine Cooperative Extension in Oxford County. The four-week course focuses on how to select and prepare foods that are good for your heart. Participants will learn how to shop wisely and modify their favorite recipes, be introduced to new foods, and have an opportunity to taste a variety of "heart healthy" dishes. "Eat Hearty is an excellent practical course for anyone interested in developing healthier eating habits," says Wendy Legg Pollock, Extension Educator, who will be teaching the course. "It's not just for heart patients or those put on a low-fat and cholesterol diet by their physician, but rather it is for anyone wanting to learn how to select and prepare tasty, healthy foods."

The classes will be held on Tuesdays, Oct. 23 and 30 and Nov. 6 and 13, from noon to 2:30 p.m. at the Extension Office on Olson Road in South Paris. The fee for the four-part series is $12, which covers the cost of the food. The public is invited. Preregistration and prepayment are required. For more information or to pre-register for the course, contact the Extension Office at 743-6329.

Boys' and Girls' State Citizens to meet Oct. 9

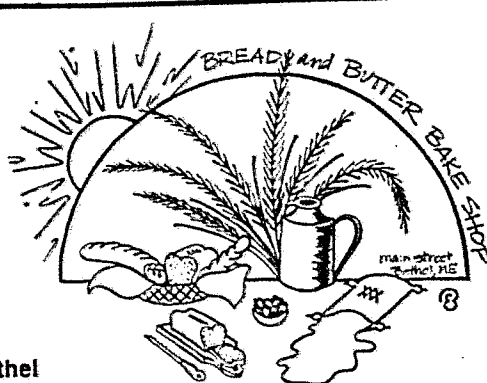

The Mundy-Allen Post #41 and Auxiliary will be holding their annual Boys and Girls State Citizens meeting at the Legion Hall on Oct. 9. A ham supper will be served at 6:30 p.m. followed by the reports of the participants.

Obituaries

LESTER J. BUTTERS

Lester J. Butters, 78, of Bethel House Apartments, died Tuesday, Sept. 18, 1990, at his residence.

He was born in Stoneham, May 13, 1912, the son of Levi and Lottie McAllister Butters. He attended Lovell and Stoneham schools, and was a U.S. Army veteran of World War II, serving in France, Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia.

He married Ruth Rodgerson Elliot on May 12, 1952; she died Nov. 26, 1986.

Mr. Butters was a woodsman and an avid hunter and fisherman. He enjoyed other outdoor activities, especially those with his dog, Lady.

He is survived by a sister, Vera Parker of West Paris.

Graveside services were held Friday, Sept. 21, at the Riverside Cemetery, Bethel.

GERTRUDE E. HOWE

Gertrude E. Howe, 79, of West Paris, died Monday morning, Sept. 17, 1990, at Norway Convalescent Center.

Born in Sweden, July 3, 1910, she was the daughter of Cyrus and Fannie Wilson Durgin. She attended Sweden schools and had been employed in area shoe shops. She married Richard Howe on Jan. 21, 1956.

Survivors include her husband of West Paris; and a brother, Stanley Durgin of Paris.

Graveside services were held Wednesday, Sept. 19, at Riverside Annex Cemetery, South Paris.

CHARLES H. SWAN

Charles H. Swan, 85, of Fryeburg died Saturday, Sept. 22, 1990 at the Portland Osteopathic Hospital, of cancer.

He was born in Malden, Mass., May 30, 1905, son of Guy Elmer and Nellie Swan. He was educated in Bethel-area and Locke Mills schools. Following his graduation from Gould Academy in 1924 he worked for the Brown Co. in LaLoutre, Quebec, then in construction of the road over Evans Notch, then for Chapman's Express in Harrison and Bridgton. In 1946 he married Helen Chapman and bought his own express company in Fryeburg which they ran together for 20 years. Selling out, they went to work winters traveling the east coast doing promotional work for the Maine Publicity Department until ill health forced him to retire.

He loved the outdoors and was a member of the Western Maine Rod and Gun Club.

His wife, Helen, died in December 1988.

He is survived by a daughter from a previous marriage, Mrs. John (Lorraine) Mills of Locke Mills; a grandson, Ralph Mills of Colchester, VT.; a granddaughter, Mrs. Jon (Marcia) Smith of Pensacola, Fla.; a half-brother, Guy E. Swan, Jr.; and several nieces and nephews.

There will be no service at his request. Burial will be at the Harrison Village Cemetery through the Raymond Funeral Home in Bridgton.

CARL R. VERRILL

Carl R. Verrill, 26, died Friday, Sept. 21, 1990 at Rumford.

He was born at Norway, July 28, 1964, the son of Carroll R. Verrill and Rose-Anne Abbott. He attended Bethel area schools, and graduated from Buckfield High School in 1983. He had been a construction worker for Northeast Construction at Boise Cascade in Rumford.

He lived in Bryant Pond for most of his life. He also served in the Army National Guard from Norway.

Survivors include his father of Bethel; his mother of Bryant Pond; his stepfather, Philip Broomhall of Bryant Pond; and a brother, Carroll R. Verrill II of Bryant Pond.

Funeral services were held Sunday, Sept. 23, at the Andrews Funeral Home, South Woodstock. Internment will be in the Cole Hill Cemetery, Bryant Pond.

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words, comfort and help for your daily life.

"O Lord, how manifold are thy works/In wisdom hast thou made them all;..." (from Psalm 104:1 RSV).

Yesterday morning the vegetable garden was enveloped with a covering of a white blanket of sorts. As you might have guessed, the white covering was frost.

For the past few weeks we had been rather reluctantly preparing for the frost. The vegetables were picked, frequently. And, as the flowers were coming into another full blooming, they were covered.

Yes, at the beginning of September it was not easy to think of the summer nearing an end.

Then, the potted plants were brought inside and there were areas in the house that were alive with new color (reds, pinks, orange, ...). Gradually the tomatoes were picked—more color as they took their place on the kitchen counter. And, within a few days tomato sauce brewed in the slow cooker offering an inviting odor. How inviting that odor is as I enter the parsonage upon returning home from a call or a meeting.

All this has brought a new excitement within me. Furthermore, the crispness of the air brought forth renewed energy.

Some of you will bring in dahlias bulbs which will be planted next year. Some plants will put forth seeds for next year. Gardens will be prepared in anticipation of next year's crops. While there is caretaking for us to do, much will just happen. God has planned so well—yes, so well.

Stop and think of all this. To me it is not only mysterious, it is remarkable. I pray that each of you will find time (take time) and opportunities to breathe in, take in, the beauty, the wonders, the artistry of the Creator, God, who comes to each of us creating, renewing and sustaining. For this I give thanks.

"My heart is steadfast, O God, My heart is steadfast, I will sing and make melody, Awake, my soul." (Psalm 108:1, RSV)

David Keith to wed Beverly York

Beverly J. York and David G. Keith wish to announce their engagement. Beverly is the daughter of Mrs. Miriam York of Bethel and the late Donald E. York. Beverly resides in Naples and is employed as a legal secretary with Petrucci, Cox & Martin in Portland.

David is the son of Mrs. Donna Bernat of Naples and the late David G. Keith. David resides in Naples and is employed as a communications technician with GPT Stromberg-Carlson. No date has been set for the wedding.

Methodist Bishop to speak at Bethel United Methodist Church

Bishop F. Herbert Skeete, spiritual leader of United Methodists in New England with speak at the Bethel United Methodist Church in Bethel on Sunday, Sept. 30, at 10:30 a.m.

Bishop Skeete was assigned to the Boston Area in September 1988. He presides over three annual (regional) conferences—Maine, New Hampshire and southern New England—with a combined membership of 124,000 in 600 churches.

Elected a bishop in 1980, he served the eastern Pennsylvania and Puerto Rico Annual Conferences before coming to Boston.

Bishop Skeete has had extensive urban pastoral experience in New York City. He also directed an interfaith poverty agency.

He is currently president of the United Methodist Church's domestic mission agency and vice president of a corporation that will establish the first United Methodist university in Africa in Zimbabwe.

Born in Harlem, Bishop Skeete was raised in Barbados, West Indies, from age five through high school. He is a graduate of Brooklyn College and earned theological degrees from Drey Theological School and New York

Bishop F. Herbert Skeete

Theological Seminary. His honorary degrees include the Doctor of Humane Letters from Philander Smith College, Little Rock, Ark., and the Jewish Theological Seminary of New York and the Doctor of Divinity from Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary, Philadelphia.

Bethel United Methodist Women to meet

The Bethel United Methodist Women met Friday, Sept. 7, in the dining room with a potluck dinner, hosted by Verna Dyke. There were 12 members present with two guests, Dorothy Grant and Marna McInnis.

Plans were discussed for the fall fair to be held Nov. 9 and 10. Another food basket is being planned. Invitations have been sent to area churches for a luncheon and program to be held Oct. 24 at 10:30 a.m.

Birthdays for September are Leona Flint, Frances Saunders and B3a Lowell. Next meeting will be Oct. 4 at 1:30. Hostesses are Ginny Keniston and Betty Blake.

Oxford Hills church sponsors visit to Britain

In response to a chance remark to the effect that Pastor Glyn Davies had not seen his family in England and Wales for over 25 years, the congregation of the Oxford Hills Assembly of God Church started to undertake a memorable two-week excursion to Pastor Davies' homeland.

While there he and his family visited many historic sites in London, Grimsby, Taunton, Somerset and Wales, but the highlight of the trip was their reunion with their family members: a brother, Merilyn, and his family; a sister, Wendy, and her family; plus two uncles and their wives, one of whom Pastor Davies had not seen in 44 years. They also met many cousins, nieces and nephews.

One notable trip involved a visit to Dowlais Top, Wales, where the Davies visited the birthplace of his parents and they were able to take pictures of the humble chapel where his grandfather preached the Gospel during the Welsh Revival at the turn of the century.

Another highlight was a visit to the home and tomb of the great African Missionary Explorer, David Livingstone, this was especially significant to the Davies, having been missionaries themselves in Africa.
